THE samples of grain brought from Peace river by T. A. Brick, comprised half a bushel each of Ladoga wheat, red life wheat and English two rowed barley. Also five pounds of white life wheat, grown on Shafsbury mission farm. Also a five pound sample of red life wheat from the farm of A. Mackenzie a few miles below the mission. The measures were exact and looked small rather than large, but the weights were as follows, per half bushel: Ladoga wheat 33½ lbs, red life wheat 33½ lbs, two rowed barley 27½ lbs. These weights per bushel are respectively Ladoga 71½ lbs, life 71 lbs, barley 55 lbs. In appearance the grain could not be excelled, particularly in beauty of color, which was simply perfect. The white life wheat was much larger in the grain than either the Ladoga or red life, but was not nearly as hard. These samples prove conclusively that the flats of the Peace river valley are a perfect success for wheat raising. No samples of oats were brought out, as it was taken for granted that oats will grow anywhere in the Northwest. But Mr. Brick says that in weight the oats raised at the mission were proportionately equal to the wheat and barley.

CATTLE DISEASE.

The reports brought in by T. A. Brick regarding the existence of a serious disease amongst the cattle on the H. B. Co. ranch in Peace river are of such a nature as to demand action by the government for the purpose of deciding exactly what the disease is and if it is contagious how best and most effectually to stamp it out. The time has gone by when it was good policy—if it ever was; and in the humble estimation of this journal it never was—to ignore or conceal the existence of serious disease amongst cattle in the Northwest. That policy has resulted in the very thing that it was desired to avoid, namely the closing of the markets of both Great Britain and the United States to the importation without quarantine of live Canadian cattle. Not only have these markets been shut against us, but what is much worse, because it will tend to prevent their being ever opened again, grave doubt has been thrown upon our national good faith. The loud talk of our high commissioner in England is of no use against cold scientific facts, and instead of doing good by protesting that there is no disease when scientific men declare that there is, he only advertises himself as a second class liar, who tries to make up in vigor what he lacks in judgment, and throws like discredit upon the country which he represents. Now that the worst has happened, in regard to our export trade, it is for us to see that still worse does not happen and that while we are protesting that no disease exists, it becomes so spread as to be a grave injury to us at home, and a serious and expensive problem to deal with. As far as the Peace river cattle are concerned, they are altogether isolated from the rest of the Northwest and of the world. There is only the most remote possibility of disease ever being communicated from Peace river to the Saskatchewan. But whether that possibility is great or small, it should be reduced to an impossibility, and the interests of the Peace river country itself are sufficiently important to the Dominion, if no other interest were involved, to demand prompt and effectual action. Although almost inaccessible at the present time, the Peace river region, great, beautiful and fertile in the highest degree and particularly valuable over its whole area for profitable cattle raising, will at no distant date be open for settlement, and it would be a terrible drawback to allow a virulent contagious disease that would contend against what must be its leading industry, to obtain a foothold now. But besides there are the interests of the people who are living there now and whose experiments are the ground work upon which the future of the region will be built, to be considered. They are raising a few head of cattle and these cattle are everything to them. They cannot afford to lose what they have a desire, if their cattle should fall through the spread of disease, their agricultural experiments generally would almost necessarily fail as well. As long as proper steps were being taken by the owners of the diseased cattle to keep them isolated from others and to kill off those affected as soon as signs of their being affected were shown, there was perhaps no necessity for government interference, which would of course be expensive and is always undesirable where it can be avoided. But now that evidence is to hand that not only are diseased animals not being promptly killed off, but also that they are not kept isolated; indeed that they are being driven about so that if the disease is contagious it cannot fail to be communicated to other cattle in that region, there is the most urgent reason for prompt and effectual government interference. It is not stating the case too strongly to say that the interests of Peace river, of the Northwest and of Canada demand that prompt measures be taken to define and destroy the cattle disease now existing amongst the cattle on the H. B. Co. ranch in Peace river.

There is another point in this connection that must be touched on. The disease is not native to Peace river. It was brought in with a herd of very fine polled Angus cattle which were imported from the Southern Alberta ranges and possibly originally from Great Britain. So far only one or two native animals have been affected by it. This is probably the most unpleasant feature of the case; but being the fact it had better be stated and faced, for no amount of bluster in Canada or London will do away with it. Either the animals brought from Southern Alberta were affected by the disease before they started north, or they were of such delicate constitution that the change of climate caused them to be affected after their arrival. In any case the matter requires the most careful investigation both in Peace river, where the disease is known to exist, and on the Southern ranges where it certainly came from in one form or another. Silence on this subject would be criminal. If disease does not exist all doubts on the subject should be removed. If it does exist the most stringent measures should be taken to stamp it out.

The following is an extract from a letter written by a farmer, which appeared in a recent issue of the Manitoba Free Press: "Much has been written lately regarding the depression of farmers, but no one so far as I have seen, suggested a remedy. I purpose proposing a complete remedy for one cause of the present depression. There are three inducing causes which militate to create the scarcity of money among farmers. I mean three causes which are controlled, these are, (1) the protective tariff, (2) the high freight rates to the west, (3) the credit system. The first two are not within the complete control of the individual farmer, the third is, and I am of opinion that it is more injurious than the other combined. Behind all the talk that is alleged in by the farmer in regard to the implementation and to those who charge high rates of interest there is really the credit system, and only way the terrible drain on the finances of the farmer can be stopped is by putting an end to the credit system. The farmer realizes that as long as he can get goods on credit he will get them and the result is disastrous. Selling and selling goods on credit is morally sound and commercially ruinous. The farmer who does pay for his implements or his other goods has to pay for the implements and goods of the farmer who does not pay; he has to pay the seller a profit on all such sales as well as on his own, and he has to pay for the seller runs in selling on credit. The credit system would draw the fangs of the money man and every other man who is now reeling by the farmer as a shark. They would be as meek as lambs before the cash paying farmer."

Medicine Hat Times, February 2nd: The week has been probably the worst for trading the western division of the C.P.R. ever seen. With the thermometer ranging in the thirties, forties and even fifties below zero, or four twenty-four hour storms and a considerable snow fall, it has been impossible to get trains with any degree of regularity. In after train had to be cancelled owing to no motive power.

The Toronto Evening News says: "The reinstatement of Burgess as deputy minister of the interior is an outrage. Since, however, the government has gone so far why not go the whole length and reinstate Langevin as minister of public works, replace Arnoldi and his bronze dogs in office and even reinstate Perley in the position which commands at once a salary from the public and valuable gifts from contractors. If the government is bent on defying public opinion it might as well do so in a wholesale way and then we shall have the interesting spectacle of France sending her bootlers to jail while Canada restores her plunderers to office and opportunity."

Medicine Hat Times: A joint circular has been issued by the several railway companies in Manitoba and the Territories, including the C.P.R., M. & N. W. R., G.N.W.C.R. and A. R. and C. C., to its agents, shippers and consignees, looking to the encouragement of sheep husbandry throughout the west. The companies will hereafter transport sheep in single or double deck cars (between stations of their respective lines, west of Port Arthur) at a minimum carload weight of 20,000 pounds. All current local freight rates in conflict with this circular are to be amended. It comes into effect on February 1.

Among the alterations and additions to the criminal code, which will shortly come into effect, is one which provides that parties inserting, or proprietors of newspapers publishing advertisements requesting the return of lost goods, "No questions asked," will be subject to a fine of $250. It is also provided that air guns and other dangerous weapons must not be sold to boys under sixteen years of age. Dealers selling guns must take a note of the number, name of maker and purchaser of each gun sold.

McAbee and Cavan of Calgary who were ruled off the New Orleans race track recently on the grounds that their horse Markman was really a racer named Post Office, are collecting evidence in support of their claim that Markman is the horse he was represented by them to be. Cavan says he bought the horse for $100 three weeks before.

Free Press: "A thirty-five per cent duty on agricultural implements, a two hundred per cent duty on coal oil, a small tax to support a binder twine combine, and increased prices generally for every article entering into the ordinary consumption of a family, are certainly if slowly wiping out all recollection of our grievances against the liberal party."

FIRE.

At five o'clock on Saturday afternoon flames were seen bursting from the rear window of a small dwelling on Jasper avenue, near the Massey-Harris warehouse, occupied by Mr. Umbach; who came from Waterloo, Ontario, last spring. No person was in the house, Mr. Umbach being at his farm on Stony Plain, Mrs. Umbach was working at a neighbor's house and the children were visiting at Mr. Ziegler's. Some of those who saw the fire first burst into the house and began to carry out the stuff, while others gave the alarm. The chemical engine was on hand in a very short time and in less time than the telling requires the flames were quenched so that the remainder of the contents of the building could be carried out. A large amount of clothing and bedding was burned, and the walls of the building were badly scorched but the bulk of the contents were got out, chiefly without much damage. The effects which were saved were placed in the building belonging to D. M. McDougall, at one time used as a music room by Miss E. Phillips. Although the walls of the building were sheeted inside and out with lumber and filled with sawdust the fire was completely put out before the firemen left the place. The building was isolated, so that it burning did not endanger other buildings, but had it not been, the engine certainly would have prevented the fire from spreading. As it was, the saving of most of the effects must be credited to the prompt arrival and good work of the engine and firemen. The building was owned by C. W. S. Bacon, of Madoc, Ontario, and was worth about $250. Mr. Umbach loses about $200 worth of effects. The fire is supposed to have started from the kitchen stove in which fire had been left and which probably lighted some clothing which had been hanging near it when the children left the house.
